GUIDELINES FOR TENURE AND PROMOTION DOSSIERS 3/10 OFFICE OF THE VICE PROVOST FOR FACULTY & ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

All tenure and promotions dossiers should be divided into the following five sections:

- I. General summary
- II. External letters
- III. Substantiation of teaching contributions
- IV. Substantiation of contributions to research/creative activity
- V. Substantiation of service contributions

I. General Summary

The initiating unit should ascertain that the dossier contains the following:

- 1) Signature Sheet (See Appendix A).
- 2) A copy of the unit and school criteria used to evaluate the candidate.
- The chairperson's evaluation and personal recommendation concerning the candidate's teaching, research/creative activities, and service with a clear indication of which area is the basis for tenure and/or promotion.
- The departmental evaluation of the candidate's teaching, research/creative activities, and service, including a report of exact votes in each area using the campus categories of Excellent, Very Good, Satisfactory and Unsatisfactory.
- 5) The candidate's CV.
- 6) The candidate's own statements about teaching, research/creative activities, and service. The candidate's statement may include excerpts from reports submitted to funding agencies as supplemental descriptions of the candidate's current and future research endeavors.
- A list of all publications noting, in the left-hand margin, whether the publication was evaluated as evidence of teaching, research/creative activities, or service. For promotions from Associate Professor to Professor, identify those publications produced since the tenure decision.
- 8) An assessment by the department or school of the extent of candidate's contribution to works with more than one author
- 9) Tenure and Promotion Dossier Checklist (See Appendix B).

The Dean of the School or College is responsible for adding the following to the dossier:

- The School or College Committee's overall recommendation (including a report of exact votes) and the Committee's evaluation of the candidate's teaching, research/creative activities, and service (including a report of exact votes in each area using the campus categories of Excellent, Very Good, Satisfactory and Unsatisfactory).
- The Dean's personal recommendation and a summary evaluation of the candidate's teaching, research/creative activities, and service (using the evaluative categories listed above).

A signature sheet should be placed in the front of the dossier to be signed by each level, recording specific votes to include absences and abstentions, and identifying whether or not the candidate is recommended for promotion and/or tenure and the basis for that recommendation (See Appendix A).

A copy of the unit and School criteria used to evaluate the candidate should appear in the general section of the dossier so that there is no misunderstanding concerning the criteria used by the evaluators at each level.

The promotion and tenure checklist should be signed by the chair or dean who prepares the dossier in the presence of the candidate, with the original being placed in the dossier and a copy given to the candidate.

All committee reports and administrators' judgments must state the basis for tenure and/or promotion (Excellence in research/creative activity, teaching or service – or a balanced case). University policy requires that each candidate should normally be Excellent in at least one area and at least satisfactory in each of the other two. In exceptional cases, a candidate may present evidence of balanced strengths in all three areas that promise excellent overall performance of comparable benefit to the University (Very Good in research, teaching and service). In all cases, the candidate's total record should be assessed by comprehensive and rigorous peer review.

Annual Reviews should not be included in the dossier unless specifically requested by the candidate. These reviews represent private communications between the individual faculty member and the closest supervisor, and should remain private.

II. External Letters

- 1) A list of external referees supplied by the candidate with statements describing why each individual was proposed as a referee and the relationship of that person to the candidate.
- 2) A list of external referees compiled independently by the chairperson in consultation with rank-appropriate faculty, with statements describing why each individual was proposed as a referee and the relationship of that person to the candidate.
- A list of external referees to whom the Dean or Unit Head sent letters requesting outside evaluations and a sample copy of the solicitation letter. An explanation should be provided for any referee who declined to write, along with a list of those solicited who did not respond.

Each School Dean or Unit Head will request the letters from the external referees, selecting names evenly from each of the lists submitted. All letters requesting outside evaluations should be accompanied by a copy of the candidate's curriculum vitae, a copy of the unit and school criteria, and an adequate and appropriate selection of publications or other materials relevant to area(s) of excellence agreed to by the chair and candidate. Letters of evaluation provide an important external perspective on the candidate's reputation and impact on his/her discipline. External referees must be asked to comment specifically on the area identified as the primary basis for tenure and/or promotion. They should also be asked to comment on the overall impact of the candidate's work in the discipline or profession.

III. Substantiation of Teaching Contributions

This section of the dossier should contain evidence of the impact of the candidate's teaching and teaching related activities. This section should include:

- 1) A list of all the specific courses taught, enrollments and grade distributions listed by semester and academic year.
- 2) The numbers of Ph.D., M.A., and other research committees chaired or served on, names of student advisees and the titles of any dissertations directed, listed by academic year.
- 3) Copies of pedagogical books, articles, chapters, and reviews as evidence of national exposure as a scholar of teaching and learning.
- 4) Evidence of the quantity and quality of classroom teaching, (e.g., syllabi of selected courses to illustrate the variety of courses taught; summaries of standardized quantitative student course evaluations (such as those prepared by BEST) and transcribed student comments; course portfolios; evidence of student learning outcomes).
- 5) Evidence of efforts to improve pedagogical capabilities (e.g., workshops, lectures, curricula disseminated, including peer evaluations of presentations and materials).
- 6) Evidence of teaching leadership and recognition (e.g., competitive grants, awards, invited presentations).
- 7) Solicited and unsolicited letters and e-mail from students, colleagues, and professional groups that reveal the influence of the candidate's teaching, including peer evaluations of classroom teaching and related course materials.
- 8) (For tenure) Written evidence of pedagogical work-in-progress.

Innovative pedagogical efforts, which may sometimes include unsuccessful approaches, should be described. In particular, efforts to specify learning outcomes and the development of new assessment procedures should be described in the dossier. Raw data (e.g., scanned sheets from BEST or hand-written qualitative student evaluations) should not be included in the dossier but should be retained by the academic unit and must be available upon request. Summaries of quantitative and qualitative student evaluations must be included in the dossier, and should provide evidence of accomplishments at varied levels of teaching. Graphs are a particularly effective way to illustrate trends across semesters. Examples of other evidence include write-ups of student exit interviews and letters or notes from present or former students solicited by and/or written to someone other than the candidate. Other supporting materials may include textbooks, monographs, articles on teaching, and digital course materials. Evidence of sponsorship of undergraduate research activities should be included.

Evaluations by colleagues based on first-hand observations of teaching practices, along with evidence that the candidate has a reputation beyond this campus, are of particular significance. Especially effective are repeated classroom observations that allow colleagues to comment on an instructor's growth and improvement through time. A reputation beyond the campus is important in cases where teaching is defined as the area of excellence, and external referees must be asked to evaluate teaching in addition to research/creative activities and service. Any other available and relevant evidence on the quality of teaching should be included.

It should be kept in mind that the primary purpose of the evidence presented in this portion of the dossier is to document the breadth and especially the quality of teaching.

III. Substantiation of Contributions to Research/Creative Activities

1) A list of the candidate's research/creative publications. For promotions from Associate Professor to Professor, this list should identify which items have been completed since the tenure review.

- Reprints of all published and in-press journal articles, research book chapters, books published, manuscripts in press, and manuscripts in draft.
- 3) Reviews of books at any stage; commentary on journal articles.
- 4) Reviews of creative works (include level of distribution, as in local, regional, national, international publications). Number of citations and their significance may also be included, if considered appropriate for the discipline.
- 5) Departmental or school evaluations of the reputation of the journals in which the publications appear, the stature of the museums showing creative work, and so forth.
- 6) List of current grants (funded and unfunded) including cover pages and abstract, and copies of interim reports to funding agencies.
- 7) Evidence of research leadership and recognition, such as awards and honors, and invitations from prestigious organizations for research lectures/activity.

Tenure dossiers should present an assessment of the impact of the dissertation research and all post-terminal degree research and creative activities; promotion dossiers should contain an assessment of work done in rank at Indiana University and elsewhere.

The current status of each publication should be noted. For example, articles that have been officially accepted by an editor or publisher should be identified as "in press." Articles that have been submitted for editorial review, but have not been accepted or have been accepted subject to revision should be identified as "submitted" or "under editorial review." Work in preparation should also be labeled appropriately. Normally work in preparation will be of little relevance in the promotion process, but may be relevant to the tenure decision which involves promise of future accomplishments.

V. Substantiation of Service Contributions

This portion of the dossier should contain:

- 1) A list of the candidate's service activities at each level: department, school, campus, community, discipline/profession. Include workshops, clinics, presentations and panels, conferences organized and coordinated, editorial work, public policy assignments, committees, offices held and other significant activities.
- 2) A list of the candidate's service-related publications.
- Evaluation of the quality of the candidate's service activities by the chairperson and by professional colleagues at IU, or by associates in the service activity, e.g., conference participant's evaluations of activities.
- 4) Copies of service-related committee reports and other relevant documents to illustrate the quality and impact of the service contributions or professional leadership provided by the candidate.

Service activities may be rendered to the department, to the University, to professional organizations, to community or governmental bodies, or to other similar institutions. Service may occur at local, state, or national levels. Where service is presented as the area of excellence, evaluations from colleagues and external associates in the service activity are of particular importance. These evaluations or other assessments must indicate the contributions and responsibilities of the individual candidate to the service activity, and demonstrate either a breadth of significant contributions or exceptional quality in specific areas of endeavor. Assessments of community engagement should include evaluative letters from individuals and groups served by the candidate's outreach activities.

SAMPLE ONLY (Basis: Research)

Professor H.G. Hart Department of Kiswahili New York University Washington Square New York, New York 10003

Dear Professor Hart:

Professor Tracy Smith is being considered for tenure (and/or promotion to Associate Professor/Professor) as a member of the faculty of the Department of Kiswahili at Indiana University. As part of our review procedures, we customarily write to a selected group of experts in the candidate's field to ask them for an independent judgment of the candidate's scholarly contributions.

Because you are an expert in the candidate's field, your frank appraisal of the significance of Professor Smith's research productivity, quality and impact would be greatly appreciated. [Insert appropriate language here and elsewhere if the basis for tenure and/or promotion is teaching or service.]

Professor Smith's vita is enclosed for your consideration. How do you rate the research contributions in both quality and quantity? How do you assess the promise for the future of Professor Smith's work? Would Professor Smith be granted tenure (and/or promotion) at your university? Are you personally acquainted with the candidate in a way that might compromise the objectivity of your assessment?

[For tenure cases:] In sum, does the candidate's research/creative activity represent to you the work of a person who has the potential to achieve a position of leadership in a substantial field of scholarly endeavor? [For promotion to full:] In sum, does the candidate's research/creative activity represent to you the work of a person who has achieved a position of leadership in a substantial field of scholarly endeavor?

Tenure (and/or promotion) decisions at Indiana University also consider the candidate's record in teaching and in areas of service to the University, the State, the Nation, and the profession. I invite your evaluations of Professor Smith's performance in these areas if you have knowledge of them.

[This paragraph is obligatory!] In most cases your letter will be seen only by a small group of faculty members serving in a tenure (and/or promotion) advisory capacity. Although letters of recommendation are normally not disclosed to candidates, the candidate may request access to, and the University is legally compelled to give access to, the entire dossier.

I appreciate your time and aid in allowing us to compile as thorough a dossier as possible for Professor Smith. Since our review is currently under way, it would be helpful if you could respond by (date). Thank you for your assistance.

Sincerely,

Carrell N. Jones Dean, School of International Languages

SAMPLE LETTER FOR BALANCED CASE

Professor H.G. Hart Department of Kiswahili New York University Washington Square New York. New York 10003

Dear Professor Hart:

Professor Tracy Smith is being considered for tenure (and/or promotion to Associate Professor/Professor) as a member of the faculty of the Department of Kiswahili at Indiana University. As part of our review procedures, we customarily write to a selected group of experts in the candidate's field to ask them for an independent judgment of the candidate's scholarly contributions. Additionally, we seek your opinion of his contributions in his area(s) of excellence and the overall impact of his work in his discipline. Ordinarily a candidate for tenure (or promotion) should excel in a least one of the categories of research/creative activity, teaching, or service and be at least satisfactory in the other two areas. In exceptional cases, however, a candidate may present evidence of balanced strengths that promise excellent overall performance of comparable benefit to the university. In such cases, we expect near-excellence in all three categories and evidence of integration between them. Professor Smith is being considered for tenure (promotion) on the basis of a balanced case.

Because you are an expert in your field, your frank appraisal of the significance of Professor Smith's research/creative, teaching, and service would be greatly appreciated.

A list of Professor Smith's publications is enclosed for your consideration. How do you rate the contributions both in quality and in quantity? How do you assess the promise for the future of Professor Smith's work? Are you personally acquainted with the candidate? Would Professor Smith be granted tenure (and/or promotion) at your university?

The C.V. enclosed for your consideration includes courses taught (and perhaps other information about teaching) as well as information about the candidate's service to the University, State, the Nation, and to the profession. Because Professor Smith is being considered for promotion/tenure on the basis of a balanced case, your impression of his performance in these areas are also invited. We realize that the judgments in these areas must rely heavily upon local assessment, but would like your comments as well.

[This paragraph is obligatory!] In most cases your letter will be seen only by a small group of faculty serving in a tenure (and/or promotion) advisory capacity. Although letters of recommendation are normally not disclosed to candidates, the candidate may request access to, and the University is legally compelled to give access to, the entire dossier.

I appreciate your time and aid in allowing us to compile as thorough a dossier as possible for Professor Smith. Since our review is currently under way, it would be helpful if you could respond by (date).

Thank you for your assistance.

Sincerely,

Carrel N. Jones Dean, School of International Languages
